

The background features a dark blue field with faint, semi-transparent stock market data. A large, golden-yellow circular shape is positioned in the upper right corner. In the lower right, a vertical dotted line represents a price trend, with a price tag of '$85.82' and a partial '$7' visible. The text '5 Stocks Blowing Out Ross' Stock Surge Indicator' is centered in a white serif font, with 'Ross' highlighted in golden-yellow.

5 Stocks Blowing Out Ross' Stock Surge Indicator

5 Stocks Blowing Out Ross's Stock Surge Indicator

This is an exciting time to be an investor.

Why?

Well, the bearish action we experienced at the start of 2022 is actually a blessing in disguise.

According to my research, 96% of the biggest stock moves started after a bear market reversal.

That's exactly what we're seeing now, as the Nasdaq 100 is recovering from a 22% decline at the start of this year.

Heed this advice: Do not miss this window of massive opportunity!

You see, markets don't really change.

Stocks follow a repeatable pattern every time a major low is made.

And the next major buying window is setting up right now.

I'm not saying we will catch every big winner... But here are five stocks that are primed for great runs based on my research.

Let's dive right in...

Surging Stock #1

Nutrien Ltd.

Nutrien Ltd. (NTR) is the Saskatoon, Canada-based agricultural fertilizer company. It focuses on producing potash, nitrogen and phosphate products for farms throughout North America and globally.

Agricultural markets were already in strong demand with limited supply even before the Ukraine-Russia conflict.

The Food & Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations continues to monitor agricultural food prices, and from May 2020 through February, overall prices are up by over 54%.

And with Ukraine and Russia both being major producers of must-have grain products, the rest of the globe is struggling to increase plantings and yield to make up for shortfalls.

Sales for Nutrien are soaring with the recent quarter showing a gain of over 79%. And while labor and input costs are on the rise for the company, it manages to deliver an operating margin of over 17%.

Lots of ongoing cash flows support its credit, which is already good with modest debts compared to assets.

And it even pays a nice dividend yielding 2%.

Nutrien Ltd. (NTR) Price – Source: TradingView

NTR has a Surge Score of 97/100, as it is on the move right now so far for this year in price.

Surging Stock #2

Northern Oil and Gas, Inc.

Northern Oil and Gas, Inc. (NOG) is a Minnetonka, Minnesota-based oil and gas exploration and production (E&P) company.

It is structured as a working interest investment company, which means that it is a partner with operating companies that provides royalties from well drilling, development and production with liabilities to fund all of the well and field development.

But as a working interest investor, it is one of a collection of companies and investors involved in individual wells and fields to limit individual risks.

The company focuses on shale and other fields principally in the Western US.

Up until recently, with oil and natural gas prices being subdued, the company was challenged for revenue and profits. But that's changed dramatically, with revenues up for the most recent quarter by over 537%.

With its investment structure, the company is able to maintain a healthy operating margin that is just shy of 16%.

It is leveraged with modest cash on hand and debts that are a bit elevated compared to assets. But with the oil and natural gas markets being heavily supported by strong demand, it is set up for gains.

Northern Oil and Gas, Inc. (NOG) Price – Source: TradingView

NOG has a Surge Score of 98/100 and is positioned to cash in on the buoyant petroleum market right now.

Surging Stock #3

The Mosaic Company

The Mosaic Company (MOS) is the Plymouth, Minnesota-based agricultural nutrient company focused on potash and phosphates.

As noted above for Nutrien, the agricultural market remains robust in demand and curtailed in supplies, made worse by the Ukraine-Russia conflict.

And with crop prices soaring as evidenced by the FAO data cited above, farmers have all the more financial and other incentives to spend more on crop yield enhancement, which directly benefits Mosaic.

Revenue has been consistently rising over the trailing five reported quarters, with the most recent showing a gain of over 56%.

And like Nutrien, Mosaic has its own cost pressures but manages to achieve a healthy operating margin of 20%.

With good cash flows and limited debts compared to assets as well as modest dividend, the stock is faring well in the market.

The Mosaic Company (MOS) Price – Source: TradingView

MOS has a Surge Score of 98/100, showing the potential of further price gains in the works.

Surging Stock #4

Global Ship Lease, Inc.

Global Ship Lease, Inc. (GSL) is a London, England-based container shipping company. It leases out its ships to primary shipping operators as well as on charters for near-term contracts.

We all know that container ships and containers remain in demand as industrial and retail companies continue to demand more and more shipments of component and finished goods.

The rub, of course, is the port delays in some of the major US western facilities. But this is where Global Ship Lease has some advantages as many of its ships are smaller in size, allowing operators to access alternative ports with less congestion.

Revenue gains have been surging over the past three quarters, with the most recent quarter showing a gain of 119%.

Given the structure of the company, it is very efficient in its operations as a leasing and chartering company with less cost pressures, including from labor. This results in an operating margin of a whopping 53%.

It is leveraged with limited cash on hand and debts running at over 53% of assets. But the business model continues to work. And it even pays a nice dividend yielding 3.6%.

Global Ship Lease, Inc. (GSL) Price – Source: TradingView

GSL has a Surge Score of 97/100, showing the power of being in the ship-owning business right now.

Surging Stock #5

Clearfield, Inc.

Clearfield, Inc. (CLFD) is the Minneapolis, Minnesota-based telecommunications equipment company.

Specifically, Clearfield focuses on making and providing fiber optic cable components that make the cable actually work.

Other companies make the cable, but Clearfield makes the connectors, processors and other bits to make it all work for broadband and other communications companies to actually make fiber work for moving voice and data around the globe.

Sure, fifth-generation wireless (5G) is big in telecom investment, but fiber is needed to make the signals actually go from antennas and transmitters/receivers through to and from end users.

And of course, data centers and cloud computing companies all absolutely require fiber and related equipment to operate.

This is all driving revenue gains for Clearfield, which have continued to see rising revenue over the past many quarters, including for the most recent quarter with a gain of 89%.

The company maintains cost controls to generate operating margins running at nearly 18%. And in turn, it delivers a return on its shareholders' equity of over 27%.

There's no dividend here, but the stock is set to generate gains in the making.

Clearfield, Inc. (CLFD) Price – Source: TradingView

CLFD has a Surge Score of 97/100 that should show the way to gains over the coming weeks and months.

So, there you have it... The top 5 stocks on my radar for 2022 and beyond, all of which score in the highest percentiles according to my Stock Surge Indicator.

Before I go, you'd like a step-by-step walkthrough on how to best take advantage of trade ideas like these...

Be sure to check out my recent article that explains everything you need to know about how to follow along.

Then, keep an eye out each and every Monday morning for another new set of Watchlist stocks for more gains ahead.

Embrace the surge,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Ross Givens". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Ross Givens

Editor, Stock Surge Daily